former secretary of state for education kenneth baker claims that secondary education has become a five year programme with a single narrow aim to prepare pupils for high stakes gcse exams at 16 from 2015 all young people will be legally required to stay in education or training until they are 18 kenneth baker sees this as a historic opportunity to re think the aims and structure of english education he argues that the national curriculum should extend only to the age of 14 and that there should be four distinct pathways from 14 18 to take account of young people s emerging interests talents and ambitions liberal arts technical sports and creative arts and career all pathways will provide a broad education but each will have a distinctive character matched to the talents and ambitions of individual students in 14 18 a new vision for secondary education kenneth baker builds a compelling case for reform with contributions from a range of educationalists who draw on the history of english education practice elsewhere in the world and their experiences an essential read for anyone interested in the future of secondary education at the turn of the seventeenth century hristomir stanev argues ideas about the senses became part of a dramatic and literary tradition in england concerned with the impact of metropolitan culture drawing upon an archive of early modern dramatic and prose writings and on recent interdisciplinary studies of sensory perception stanev here investigates representations of the five senses in jacobean plays in relationship to metropolitan environments he traces the significance of under examined concerns about urban life that emerge in micro histories of performance and engage the in voluntary and sometimes pre rational participation of the five senses with a dominant focus on sensation he argues further for drama s particular place in expanding the field of social perception around otherwise less tractable urban phenomena such as suburban formation environmental and noise pollution epidemic disease and the impact of built in city space the study focuses on ideas about the senses on stage but also to the extent possible explores surviving accounts of the sensory nature of playhouses the chapters progress from the lower order of the senses taste and smell to the higher hearing and vision before considering the anomalous sense of touch in platonic terms the plays considered include five city comedies a romance and two historical tragedies playwrights whose work is covered include shakespeare jonson webster fletcher dekker and middleton ultimately stanev highlights the instrumental role of sensory flux and instability in recognizing the uneasy manner in which the london writers and perhaps many of their contemporaries approached the rapidly evolving metropolitan environment during the reign of king james i
