a luminous moving and visual record of fleeting moments of connection new york times book review editors choice a visionary work of radical empathy known for immersion journalism that is more immersed than most people are willing to go and for a prose style that is somehow both fierce and soulful jeff sharlet dives deep into the darkness around us and awaiting us this work began when his father had a heart attack two years later jeff still in his forties had a heart attack of his own in the grip of writerly self doubt jeff turned to images taking snapshots and posting them on instagram writing short true stories that bloomed into documentary during those two years he spent a lot of time on the road meeting strangers working night shifts as he drove through the mountains to see his father exploring the life and death of charley keunang a once aspiring actor shot by the police on la s skid row documenting gay pride amidst the violent homophobia of putin s russia passing time with homeless teen addicts in dublin and accompanying a lonely woman whose only friend was a houseplant on shopping trips early readers have called this book incantatory the voice prophetic in james agee s tradition of looking at the reality of american lives defined by insomnia and late night driving and the companionship of other darkness dwellers night bakers and last call drinkers frightened people and frightening people the homeless the lost or merely disoriented and other people on the margins this brilliant darkness erases the boundaries between author subject and reader to ask how do people live with suffering a brilliant analysis of the foundations of racist policing in america the day to day brutalities largely hidden from public view endured by black youth growing up under constant police surveillance and the persistent threat of physical and psychological abuse storytelling that can make people understand the racial inequities of the legal system and restore the humanity this system has cruelly stripped from its victims new york times book review drawing upon twenty five years of experience representing black youth in washington d c s juve nile courts kristin henning confronts america s irrational manufactured fears of these young people and makes a powerfully compelling case that the crisis in racist american policing begins with its relationship to black children henning explains how discriminatory and aggressive policing has socialized a generation of black teenagers to fear resent and resist the police and she details the long term consequences of racism that they experience at the hands of the police and their vigilante surrogates she makes clear that unlike white youth who are afforded the freedom to test boundaries experiment with sex and drugs and figure out who they are and who they want to be black youth are seen as a threat to white america and are denied healthy adolescent development she examines the criminalization of black adolescent play and sexuality and of black fashion hair and music she limns the effects of police presence in schools and the depth of police induced trauma in black adolescents especially in the wake of the recent unprecedented worldwide outrage at racial injustice and inequality the rage of innocence is an essential book for our moment
