many leading american thinkers in the nineteenth century who accepted the premises of emersonian transcendentalism valued the basic concept of pantheism that god inheres in nature and in all things and that a person could achieve a sense of belonging she or he lacked in society by seeking a oneness with all of nature as richard hardack shows however writers such as ralph waldo emerson nathaniel hawthorne and herman melville conceived of nature as everything other other than the white male protestant culture of which they were a part this conception of nature then became racialized and the divine became associated with african american and native american identities as well as with femininity in not altogether human hardack reevaluates transcendentalism in the context of nineteenth century concerns about individual and national racial identity elucidating the influence of pantheism hardack draws on an array of canonical and unfamiliar materials to remap the boundaries of what has long been viewed as white male transcendental discourse this book significantly revises notions of what transcendentalism and pantheism mean and how they relate to each other hardack s close analysis of pantheism and its influence on major works and lesser known writing of the nineteenth century opens up a new perspective on american culture during this key moment in the country s history
