a provocative revelatory history of british romanticism that examines the impact of the transatlantic slave economy on the lives and times of some of our most beloved poets with urgent lessons for today a scrap of coleridge s handwriting the sugar that wordsworth stirred into his teacup a bracelet made of mary shelley s hair percy shelley s gilded baby rattle the death mask preserving keats s calm face byron s silk lined leather boot who would have known there could be vast worlds contained in these items in a completely new interpretation of the romantics and their context whitening award winning scholar and literary sleuth mathelinda nabugodi uses these items to frame her interrogation of the poets leading us on an expansive journey through time and memory situating us in depth of their world and her own freedom liberty autonomy are the period s favorite words nabugodi writes romantic poets sought truth in the depth of their souls and in the mind s unbounded regions ideals of free speech and human rights were being forged and yet the period was defined by a relentless commitment to the displacement and stolen labor of millions romanticism she argues can no longer be discussed without the racial violence with which it was complicit still rather than using this idea to rehash black pain and subjugation she mines the archives for instances of resistance beauty and joy nabugodi moves effortlessly between the past and present she takes us into the physical archives and with startling clarity unpacks her relationships with them what they are and should be who built them how they are entwined with an industry that was the antithesis of freedom and how she feels holding the materials needed to write this book as a someone whose ancestry is largely absent from their ledgers the trembling hand presents a dazzling new way of reading the past this transfixing evocative book reframes not only the lives of the legendary romantics but also their poetry and the very era in which they lived it is a reckoning with art archives and academia bound to echo through the conversation for a long time to come
