ever since the mid twentieth century life has generally been better in western nations for the huge majority of the subsequent generations born thereafter this most notably in terms of better standards of living and healthcare however the traditional family unit has also come under great attack during this same time with far more divorces break ups along with higher rates of single parenthood and loneliness than ever before thus creating a domino effect leading to a whole array of challenging social issues further down the line how has this happened what if anything can be done to reverse this tide the manosphere movement which regularly comes under huge criticism seeks to explore these often troubling and complex issues more often than not with a no holds barred approach numerous bloggers have gained large and growing fanbases from countless men and boys the entire world over is it totally absurd to place much of the blame on modern feminism are those involved in the movement just a bunch of heartless and misogynist thugs or are they genuinely concerned men telling very uncomfortable truths and who deep down actually want the best for women via tough love and the biggest question of all is what would jesus himself make of all of this point saint charles a historically white working class neighbourhood with a strong irish and french presence and little burgundy a multiracial neighbourhood that is home to the city's english speaking black community face each other across montreal's lachine canal once an artery around which work and industry in montreal were clustered and by which these two communities were formed and divided deindustrializing montreal challenges the deepening divergence of class and race analysis by recognizing the intimate relationship between capitalism class struggles and racial inequality fundamentally deindustrialization is a process of physical and social ruination as well as part of a wider political project that leaves working class communities impoverished and demoralized the structural violence of capitalism occurs gradually and out of sight but it doesn't play out the same for everyone point saint charles was left to rot until it was revalorized by gentrification whereas little burgundy was torn apart by urban renewal and highway construction this historical divergence had profound consequences in how urban change has been experienced understood and remembered drawing extensive interviews a massive and varied archive of imagery and original photography by david lewis into a complex chorus steven high brings these communities to life tracing their history from their earliest years to their decline and their current reality he extends the analysis of deindustrialization often focused on single industry towns to cities that have seemingly made the post industrial transition the urban neighbourhood has never been a settled concept and its apparent innocence masks considerable contestation divergence and change over time deindustrializing montreal thinks critically about locality revealing how heritage becomes an agent of gentrification investigating how places like little burgundy and the point acquire race and class identities and questioning what is preserved and for whom
