discusses the harlem renaissance as a crucial moment in the afro american form of expression published in 1967 as the early triumphs of the civil rights movement yielded to increasing frustration and violence the crisis of the negro intellectual electrified a generation of activists and intellectuals the product of a lifetime of struggle and reflection cruse s book is a singular amalgam of cultural history passionate disputation and deeply considered analysis of the relationship between american blacks and american society reviewing black intellectual life from the harlem renaissance through the 1960s cruse discusses the legacy and offers memorably acid edged portraits of figures such as paul robeson lorraine hansberry and james baldwin arguing that their work was marked by a failure to understand the specifically american character of racism in the united states this supplies the background to cruse's controversial critique of both integrationism and black nationalism and to his claim that black americans will only assume a just place within american life when they develop their own distinctive centers of cultural and economic influence for cruse's most important accomplishment may well be his rejection of the clichés of the melting pot in favor of a vision of Americanness as an arena of necessary and vital contention an open and ongoing struggle against a backdrop of multiculturalism and afrocentricity in the intellectual traditions of african american studies this book sets new standards and directions for the future it is the first book to systematically address the many themes that have changed the political and social landscape for african americans among these changes are new transnational processes of globalization the devastating impact of neoliberal public policies upon urban minority communities increasing imprisonment and attendant loss of voting rights especially among black males the surging of hispanic population and widening class differences as deindustrialization crack cocaine and gentrification entered urban communities marable and a cast of influential contributors suggest that a new beginning is needed for african american scholarship they explain why black studies needs to break its conceptual and thematic limitations exploring blackness in new ways and in different geographic sites they outline the major intersectionalities that should shape a new black studies the complex relationships between race gender sexuality class and youth they argue that african american studies scholarship must help shape and redirect public policies that affect black communities working with government foundations and other private institutions on such issues as housing health care and criminal justice
