from the real housewives of atlanta to flavor of love reality shows with predominantly black casts have often been criticized for their negative representation of african american women as loud angry and violent yet even as these programs appear to be rehashing old stereotypes of black women the critiques of them are arguably problematic in their own way as the notion of respectability has historically been used to police black women s behaviors the first book of scholarship devoted to the issue of how black women are depicted on reality television real sister offers an even handed consideration of the genre the book s ten contributors black female scholars from a variety of disciplines provide a wide range of perspectives while considering everything from basketball wives to say yes to the dress as regular viewers of reality television these scholars are able to note ways in which the genre presents positive images of black womanhood even as they catalog a litany of stereotypes about race class and gender that it tends to reinforce rather than simply dismissing reality television as trash this collection takes the genre seriously as an important touchstone in ongoing cultural debates about what constitutes trashiness and respectability written in an accessible style that will appeal to reality tv fans both inside and outside of academia real sister thus seeks to inspire a more nuanced thoughtful conversation about the genre s representations and their effects on the black community despite rhythm and blues culture s undeniable role in molding reflecting and reshaping black cultural production consciousness and politics it has yet to receive the serious scholarly examination it deserves destructive desires corrects this omission by analyzing how post civil rights era rhythm and blues culture articulates competing and conflicting political social familial and economic desires within and for african american communities as an important form of black cultural production rhythm and blues music helps us to understand black political and cultural desires and longings in light of neo liberalism s increased codification in america s racial politics and policies since the 1970s robert j patterson provides a thorough analysis of four artists kenneth babyface edmonds adina howard whitney houston and toni braxton to examine black cultural longings by demonstrating how our reading of specific moments in their lives careers and performances serve as metacommentaries for broader issues in black culture and politics
