a satirical short story that tells the tale of how a monster was formed and came to devour as in eat the entire city of cleveland

don ross provides a concise and distinct introduction to the philosophy of economics for students in need of a short but engaging study of the main issues in the subject today ross offers his own provocative interpretation of the value of economics in science and public policy giving a unique perspective from a world authority this text argues that the major economic problems of the present century involve issues of public goods and common pool resources with which orthodox economic theory based as it is on private markets is ill equipped to deal as human populations expand and demands upon natural resources increase the need to manage the environments in which people live becomes more important but also more difficult land and water management is especially critical as the use of upstream watersheds can drastically affect large numbers of people living in downstream watersheds an integrated approach that stresses both the importance of participatory planning and the institutional and technical constraints and opportunities is therefore necessary the institutional and technical context for managing watersheds and river basins including the involvement of both the public and private sectors is also examined
