a cautionary but optimistic book about the world's changing climate and the fate of humanity from two of the architects of the 2015 paris agreement one of the most inspiring books i've ever read yuval harari christiana figueres and tom rivett carnac outline two possible scenarios for our planet in one they describe what life on earth will be like by 2050 if we fail to meet the paris agreement's climate targets in the other they lay out what it will be like to live in a regenerative world that has net zero emissions they argue for confronting the climate crisis head on with determination and optimism the future we choose presents our options and tells us what governments corporations and each of us can and must do to fend off disaster children's literature has always been produced by radicals and reformers critical analysis of their views and methods is a fascinating and increasingly contested new field bringing together a range of perspectives from established academics well known children's writers and students of children's literature this collection provides an unusual and challenging read whether you are interested in how writers present the lives of working children in nineteenth century america how picture books challenge and subvert the political stance of contemporary australia or how issues in kenya or palestine can become the material of children's fiction there are plenty of ideas to explore how have the aluni valley duna people of papua new guinea responded to the challenges of colonial and post colonial changes that have entered their lifeworld since the middle of the twentieth century living in a corner of the world influenced by mining companies but relatively neglected in terms of government sponsored development these people have dealt creatively with forces of change by redeploying their own mythological themes about the cosmos in order to make claims on outside corporations and by subtly combining features of their customary practices with forms of christianity attempting to empower their past as a means of confronting the future
