environmental educators face a formidable challenge when they approach climate change due to the complexity of the science and of the political and cultural contexts in which people live there is a clear consensus among climate scientists that climate change is already occurring as a result of human activities but high levels of climate change awareness and growing levels of concern have not translated into meaningful action communicating climate change provides environmental educators with an understanding of how their audiences engage with climate change information as well as with concrete empirically tested communication tools they can use to enhance their climate change program starting with the basics of climate science and climate change public opinion armstrong krasny and schuldt synthesize research from environmental psychology and climate change communication weaving in examples of environmental education applications throughout this practical book each chapter covers a separate topic from how environmental psychology explains the complex ways in which people interact with climate change information to communication strategies with a focus on framing metaphors and messengers this broad set of topics will aid educators in formulating program language for their classrooms at all levels communicating climate change uses fictional vignettes of climate change education programs and true stories from climate change educators working in the field to illustrate the possibilities of applying research to practice armstrong et al ably demonstrate that environmental education is an important player in fostering positive climate change dialogue and subsequent climate change action thanks to generous funding from cornell university the ebook editions of this book are available as open access from cornell open cornellpress cornell edu cornell open and other open access repositories education which has been at the heart of the middle east and north africa mena region s history and civilizations for centuries has a large untapped potential to contribute to human capital well being and wealth the region has invested heavily in education for decades but it has not been able to reap the benefits of its investments despite a series of reforms mena has remained stuck in a low learning low skills level expectations and aspirations a new framework for education in the middle east and north africa identifies four key sets of tensions that are holding back education in the region credentials and skills discipline and inquiry control and autonomy and tradition and modernity these tensions are shaped by society and are reflected in classrooms if they are not addressed mena will continue to operate at a level below its potential this report outlines a new framework with a three pronged approach that can help address these tensions and unleash the potential of education in mena a concerted push for learning that starts early for all children regardless of background with qualified and motivated educators and that leverages technology uses modern approaches and monitors learning outcomes a stronger pull for skills by all stakeholders in the labor market and society that involves coordinated multisystem reforms within and beyond the education system a new pact for education at the national level with a unified vision shared responsibilities and accountabilities education is not just the responsibility of the education system it is everyone's business the push pull and pact framework offers an opportunity for mena to move forward to reclaim its heritage of a learned region and to meet the expectations and aspirations of its people the current situation in mena requires a renewed focus on education not just as a national priority for economic growth and social development but as a national emergency for stability peace and prosperity
