sarah swann provides a fresh approach to examining the long standing debates over disaffection and in particular social class differences in educational achievement through a mixed methods methodology and the showcasing of new research by observing pupils as they engage with peers and teachers in school swann allows disaffection to be seen and heard in real events which constructs disaffection differently from objective statistical evidence on school exclusions rather than a homogenous identity this book illustrates disaffection as layered and resting on a series of issues located on the crossroads between the cultural context of the neighbourhood and the public sphere of the school it plots in a detailed way how these structures interact and mesh to create disaffected identities disaffection does not emerge in a vacuum or without a cause pupils arrive at school with a wide variety of experiences and it is from these that they interpret understand and act out their identities whilst the study in part seeks to describe and understand the social world of the school in terms of the pupils interpretations of the situation it analytically frames the perceptions of pupils within a wider social context in particular it focuses on the relationships between schooling and the wider macro structures and social relations that underpin disaffection this approach makes the research both critical and interpretative and also able to shed new light on educational policy across england based on an understanding of the role of disaffection
